

Assessing Your Credit

1 Evaluate your consumer loan records

Even if you have excellent credit, it's wise to double-check it in the beginning.

Get a copy of your credit report. Any disputed items can affect your score .

2 Mortgage, rent, or equity line payments

3 Bankruptcy records

4 Foreclosure records

5 Current debt collection records

